To be on Borders Road in Beaver Creek is to be somewhere special in the Vail Valley. The privacy and prestige of this neighborhood is coveted, and homes here are rarely available. The driving approach to this home is almost as glorious as waking up inside of it. The elegant, heated driveway welcomes you into a five-car garage. With the first step into the main level, you are immediately struck by the expanse of windows and how beautifully you are ensconced by the Aspens and the evergreens. This home is set upon one of the resort's largest homesites and when you sit quietly on any of the patios, you may find it hard to believe you are in Beaver Creek at all. The great room offers sitting areas with a view to both the north and the south. And the kitchen feels like it is actually set in the backyard. The primary bedroom has soaring ceilings, a wall of glass, a walkout patio, a very large walk-in closet, and a beautiful office space which is seemingly set in the trees. The secondary bedroom suite is located privately on the lower level, and it too has a wonderful walk-out patio. This home is an early '90's masterpiece of modern design drafted by the local architectural icon, Jim Morter. The finish materials may not entirely transcend into the today's style, but much does, and the stunning beauty of the home and the function of the floor plan exhibits how unimportant that may be. The ski-in access is off trail and it is contingent upon snow conditions
